A BRITISH ASSISTANT IN GUADELOUPE FAREWELL, REUBEN

Reuben Constantine is a 22-year-old English assistant who loves to learn languages.

Before traveling to Guadeloupe, he did not know what to expect, aside from stereotypes about the relaxed Caribbean life. At first, he encountered some health problems which was challenging. However, he still loved the nature and his job at school. After his health improved, he enjoyed exploring the island with his friends.

He was particularly interested in the history and culture of the island.

He recognises that the history is not always easy to talk about but that the result is a diverse cultural landscape.

He even enjoyed attending the Creole language classes offered for pupils of the school.

He liked eating fresh fruits and vegetables. Although he prefers the freshness of the food in Guadeloupe he thinks that prices are too high. In the UK, as food is cheaper he can cook more easily.

Overall, Port-Louis felt like home to him, he made a lot of new friends that he will miss.
